

JULY 2022

Scottish Women's Convention Monthly Newsletter

Dear Friends,

As part of our work in consulting with women in Scotland, The SWC commits to visit all parts of Scotland. In August the team are travelling to Barra and the surrounding area for roadshow events. Our 'roadshow' events take the form of informal roundtable discussions, where women can talk freely about issues that are important to them.

We are hosting these events during the week beginning Monday 29th of August. Further details Re: Venues etc, will be published soon.

Best Wishes,

Agnes Tolmie - Chair of The SWC

Staff Update

We would like to thank Jess Galloway for her time as part of the SWC team and send her best wishes for her Primary Teacher training. We are grateful that Jess will continue to be part of the SWC Team at future events as a volunteer.

We would like to welcome Eilidh Young to our team who will start her role in August.

VAWG Roundtable & Survey Report

The Scottish Women's Convention commissioned a project in February 2022 to better understand women's lived experiences of Violence Against Women and Girls (VAWG) in this context. This consisted of in-person and online roundtable events in Coatbridge, Ayr and East Kilbride along with a online survey, and a conference to encourage a broad range of women to be able to participate. The women who contributed represented a range of services supporting women and girls, as well as many survivors themselves.

'Celebrating Women in Scotland'

We recently held an event to celebrate all the women nominated in our International Women's Day campaign. This was an opportunity to hear more about the women and to say thanks for all that they have done within their communities. Below are photos of some of the women in attendance. To view our brochure CLICK HERE.
